ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 10, 1937.

GOOD INTENTIONS NOT ENOUGH Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, criticizes the administration-supported federal reorganization bill on the ground that it would vest tremendous powers in the President, powers which congress could not recover except by two-thirds vote.

To this apparently valid objection Dr. Charles E. Merriam, a member of the President's reorganization committee, objects, protesting, "I don't know whether Senator Byrd seriously intended to intimate the committee did not intend to maintain the democratic form of our government, but if he did, I resent it."

It is strange that a man with as long training in political science as has Dr. Merriam should be unable to see that demoracy dependent upon the good intentions of a small group is no longer democracy. The most effective foes of human freedom were those owners of chattel slaves who made life so pleasant for their living property that their slaves feared the responsibilities of free men and women.

Benign dictatorship is no less dictatorship because it is gentle. The kindly despot is a despot still.

Permanent allocation of such authority as that provided in the reorganization bill would place the nation, in many vital respects, at the mercy of any administration which might gain power. And, once in control, an administration holding the weapon this bill gives would be exceedingly difficult to depose through orderly, democratic procedure.

No one in the country questions the good intentions and high ideals of President Roosevelt and the administration he leads. Incident to the New Deal program, based upon the necessary and worthy objective of help for the less fortunate citizens, there have been proposals of questionable nature. Inspired by overanxiety to reach desired goals quickly, they would, if put into effect, constitute grave perils to the future of the American system of free

One of these dangerous plans is the reoranization measure. It lodges in the executive department widely increased authority, unchecked by congress, over every federal department, bureau and activity. Such authority should not be delegated by congress.

Neither Senator Byrd nor any other American would impute discreditable motives to the committee of which Dr. Merriam is a distinguished member-but too much power is a dangerous weapon.

None can foretell what individual, what group, what interests may occupy the offices of the national administration when the days of the Roosevelt regime are over and changes have brought about new problems, new interests and new social and political affiliations.

WISDOM FROM THE EAST

Dr. Changting T. Wang, Chinese ambassador to the United States, in a recent interview, expressed an ideal of democracy that will be approved by the people of every democracy of the world. He stated that in the great democratic countries of the world lies the promise "of future ages of peace through freedom granted to the self-reliant individual."

Dr. Wang had been asked about the ideals of the new China and the new Chinese government.

"We are," he replied, "seeking a position of freedom and equality among the nations of the earth. The ideal that we are carrying out on behalf of our great leader, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, in the Revolution of 1911, is to bring to China an alert but not aggressive sense of nationalism; a democracy expressing itself through a republic, and a common sense realization that the chief interest of the individual is livelihood. We are preparing to play our part in the future history of the world, and America is invited to understand that a republic of 450,000,000 people in Asia, the republics in North and South America and elsewhere and the Democratic Monarchy of the British empire contain promise of future ages of peace through freedom granted to the self-reliant individual."

It is exactly through such adherence to the ideal of individual self-reliance, coupled with true liberty for every citizen, that the democracies will eventually lead a strife-weary world to lasting peace and equal opportunity for every honest man or woman of every nation

RACKETEERS ON THE RUN?

One "Tootsie" Herbert and two of his henchmen, leaders of a poultry handlers' union in New York, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of union funds in the middle of their recent trials, thus simplifying the work of Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey and his staff, a branch of the New York law-enforcement personnel charged with the breaking up of "rackets" in

This is the second time within two months that "racket" defendants have interrupted the course of their trials to plead guilty. Apparently, when Prosecutor Dewey and his aides prosecute, they have their evidence in full and their cases well prepared. It is encouraging evidence that the period of the racket ascendency is passing.

A charge of embezzlement of union funds is difficult to substantiate, owing to the lack of any legal requirement for an accounting by union leaders of the huge sums in the form of dues from members and "special assessments" entrusted to their keeping. Though it may often be suspected that these men handle such funds as practically personal property, it is almost an impossibility to secure proof.

Conviction of such individuals as "Tootsie" Herbert, who has by his own confession divided union funds with his co-defendants, as well as enjoying a $200 a week salary, incidental expenses and an expensive automobile furnished from the union treasury, should be an invaluable lesson to union members.

The chief beneficiaries of a law requiring rigid accounting of union funds would be the unions themselves. There is no other "big business" organization that reposes such trust in its leaders as does organized labor. While the great majority of these men, responsible for the proper use of the money entrusted to them for the purposes intended, may be absolutely faithful to their trust, the occasional dishonest racketeer, such as Herbert, who gets his fingers into the union treasury, can cost its membership dearly. Not only heavily in financial loss, but in loss of prestige and public respect, also.

Prosecutor Dewey is performing a fine service to the public as he smashes, one by one, the racketeering organizations that have preyed upon New York business.

When he uses embezziement of union funds as a weapon, and makes the charge stick, he is performing an even greater service to the great rank and file of the honest men and women who compose the dues-paying membership of the unions.

ANOTHER CHARMING DECATUR ASSET

Decatur, county seat of DeKalb county, "city of homes," and Atlanta's well-loved neighbor, has added a new charm to the many which have already lured so many who spend their business days in Atlanta to establish their homes in the smaller community.

Unnecessary noise has been banned by order of the Decatur city commission. No more may the thoughtless motorist tootle a too vociferous horn, no longer may the dashing delivery boy open wide the cut-out of his racing motorcycle. There must be no unnecessary shouting, clanging, banging or raucous ear-shattering reverberations around the courthouse square or on those pleasant shady avenues lined with attractive homes.

There are other happy features about life in Decatur which her larger sister, Atlanta, could emulate to advantage. None, however, that would conduce more to the joys of home and the comfort of the hours of recreation and rest than this new rule against all noise that is not essential to the safe conduct of

AN OLD, SAD STORY

(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.) It's an old, sad story in these United States, and the real basis for the fact that the joint senate and house bill designed to reduce farm tenancy contains a clause that would forbid sale of land by clients of the federal bounty for five years. In other words, the congressional con-ferees realize and acknowledge the vast damage done American farming in years gone by the fact that land has been a speculative commodity.

There is probably not a single state in the fertile farm areas of the country that has not suffered, not once but many times, from the fact that farm lands have alternately boomed and dwindled with the price of corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco or what have you. Land priced at $50 an acre one year has been selling for twice or three or four times as much within two or three years later, depending on the price of what can be raised on it. The farmer buys land at the high price because corn or wheat or whatever is selling at a certain high price at the moment. He figures, let us say, that 10,000 bushels of wheat will bring him $10,000, and what becomes of him when wheat goes to 30 cents before he has paid off his notes it is unnecssary to state. It is the temptation that goes along with such history that congress proposes to remove from the erstwhile tenant who is trying to become an owner.

Many economists, of course, insist that all farm land should be removed from the speculative field by legislative action. The land, they argue, is as basic as food, drink and clothing, and should not, therefore, by any manner of means be allowed to fluctuate sharply under either the changes in price of farm products or the manipulations and contrivings of speculators. Changes in farm land values should be subject to review and control under community auspices and with as many safeguards against crooked dealing as can be provided. It's an idea that has not, perhaps, sufficiently engaged the fancy of the

TWO STRONG MEN WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—While the prediction for Tuesday night is strictly fair weather when the good fellows get together at the Democratic harmony dinner to honor Senate Majority Leader Barkley, it will be impossible to convince the cynics that a number of guests aren't wearing daggers in their garters. Maybe they are.

But, strange as it may seem, the denial that political stilettos are de rigeur comes quite as emphatically from some of the anti-court reformers as from administration leaders. Behind it all lies a story of two strong men standing face to face, as Kipling put it.

On the train coming back from Senator Robinson's funeral there were some who looked on Postmaster General Farley with a fearful and some with a baleful eye.

Senator Champ Clark was one of the latter, and he minced no words on that subject now so carefully avoided, namely, reprisals. "Remember," said the Missouri senator, or words to that effect, "my family and I have bulwarked the Democratic party longer than you, General, and if you attempt to read me out of it, I'll be there first."

The warning was voiced then that Senators Clark and Wheeler and others of the bitter anti-courters, if their heads were threatened, would take to the hustings vigorously against the so-called "weak senators who had supported the court bill.

It has been reliably stated that, when two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the east and the west, they can sometimes achieve peace without bloodshed.

IN PRAISE OF HARMONY On the basis of this authority, all good Democrats are declaring now, in unison, as the sound of studs slipping into shirt bosoms is "What a world of happiness their harmony foretells. Through the balmy air of night. How they ring out their delight!"

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR VAN NUYS. Even the friends of Senator Van Nuys, who had about given up hope that the Democratic party would support him in Indiana in 1938 after the recent visit of Governor Townsend to the White House, are perking up.

Mr. Townsend was quoted then as saying that the Democratic organization in the Bosier state "couldn't renominate Senator Van Nuys if it wanted to."

Now the senator's friends are saying that all things are working together for his good.

MORE STRANGE BEDFELLOWS Paradoxes and politics appear to walk hand in hand, but one last week seems to offer a prize, with perfect logic guiding both sides of the controversy.

It now develops, although, of course, it isn't nominated in the bond, that harassed Secretary of State Hull was hurried into urging the passage of the bill forbidding the picketing of foreign embassies and legations by fresh protests from the Fascist governments, Italy

"By the comity of nations," said Mr. Hull, "representatives of foreign governments in countries where law and order are supposed to prevail are entitled to freedom from any attempted intimidation This statement might be taken out of any work in international law. But peaceful picketing, as such, is permitted under the statutes of the United States, and the liberals in congress immediately sprang at the throat of the anti-picketing proposal, crying "uncon-Nothing strange about that, either. But here, in the forefront of those who leapt upon the bill, was none other than Hamilton Fish, red-baiter de luxe, when it is well known that most of the picketing is done by crowds unmistakably and admittedly the leftists Yet it was Mr. Fish who wrote the minority report attacking the bill, with Maury Maverick, obstreperous Texas Liberal, seconding, and Representative Jerry O'Connell, of Montana, who lately sponsored the showing of a heart-rending pro-Loyalist film, "The Blood of Spain," loudly applauding.

Representative Maverick explained the strange bedfellowship

You can count on 'Ham' Fish being right sometimes, especially when a Democrat goes wrong."

Meanwhile, Secretary Hull is kept busy, what with avoiding delegations of picketers who aren't satisfied with parading in front of embassies but insist on presenting him with petitions, and likewise with the suggestions from European countries that there ought to be some correlation between the "comity of nations" and the laws of our land. ONE SURE THING While talk of a special session of congress disturbed the atmosphere on Capitol Hill, there remained one point on which there was no uncertainty. Whatever happens, it will be a case of adjournment and not recess.

When congress adjourns, the members get their fares paid back to Washington by the government if a special session is called. When there is simply a recess, there is no travel allowance. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

This uggests that the "administrator pokesman" occupies in the CIC position equal to that of Mr Roosevelt in the administration and the total authority of his remarks gives me strongly to sus-pect that the statement accurately presents the statement accurately presents the sentiments of John L. Mr. Anderson sent me a copy of his story with a note saying: "Peg, I realize that you are beyond redemption, but you may retain the grace to punish yourself by reading a few salty truths, you unreconstructed bum."

these methods.

The interview bespeaks a belief on the part of John L. Doe that in return for the $500,000 and the CIO's votes, the President should have helped Mr. Doe to bulldoze unwilling Americans into the ranks of the CIO, to occupy plants by the sitdown method and to pro-mote commotion with mobile orces and ribters.

After long hesitation and only when that element of the com-munity known as "the public" began to go Fascist in the vigilante movement Mr. Roosevelt said, "A plague to both your houses." Danny Roper bashfully said, "The right to strike may be safeguard-ed, but equally fundamental is the right to work," and Madam Perkins got around to the point of thinking that, perhaps, the sitdown was unlawful.

These intimations John L. Lewis regards as hostility in the manner of a man who has authority to speak for all members of the CIO, although I know a few who grant him no such authority.

Mr. Doe said, "The mercenaries of the steel companies have mur-dered 18 of our men, and not one word of condemnation has been uttered from those sources from which we would naturally expect it. Behind Washington Headlines FAIR ENOUGH A Sad Fable Concerning Bill Jones and His Weak Spot

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In the time of ancient mythology, when many gods lived on the earth and dwelt together on a mountain, the chief god said to the second god: "Have you observed my favorite Bill Jones, that he never complains and his heart never is bitter?"

"No wonder," said the second god, "you make life soft for him. Let me handle him a while and he'll sing a different tune."

"Go ahead," said the first god.

So the second god came down the mountain and found Bill preaching among the heathen. He had built a fine temple and was drawing big crowds and all of the heathen liked him.

Then the second god filled the heathen with malice and they turned against Bill and destroyed his temple and drove him out of the land.

"Well, I did my best," said Bill. "It is sad to see my work in ruins, but the gods doubtless have some purpose in allowing it." And he went away whistling.

The second god was annoyed but not defeated. Again he asked permission to work on Bill.

When he came down again, he learned that Bill had become a doctor. He had many patients, for his skill was great, and everybody praised and loved him.

So the second god gave the patients mysterious fevers and they all died, and the relatives looked coldly at Bill and called him a

So the second god came down again disguised as a wise man and said to Bill: "My son, you have spent many years doing good works. Now you should go into business and make some money for your old age."

Bill thought it good advice and began to trade and traffic. As the years passed his fortune grew and he became a prominent citizen and a leading taxpayer. Then the second god brought a depression that broke every-

Archer sent a man to look at the gunner's room, and found the leak was "only the water washing up between the timbers."
Going on deck the lieutenant found it still very wet. The sky overhead was black. The waves were rising so high that they looked like mountain peaks. The wind roared louder than thunder.

"We are gone at last" the cap-tain shouted to Archer.
"Yes, sir, farewell!" the lieuten-ant replied.

Pennsylvania Mills Crippled by Strike; Many Suspend Operations.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 9.—(P) Silk mill workers estimated at 10,000 by union leaders left their jobs in Pennsylvania today in answer to a strike call by the Committee for Industrial Organization, seeking to organize in seven states.

No estimates of the number idle

The strike in Pennsylvania centered in Hazleton, where violence broke out at the Duplan Silk Corporation mill, one of the largest in the area. One picket was stabbed in the arm and another narrowly missed being cut.

Disorder also broke out at the Duplan mill at Nanticoke City. Three women leaving the mill at the end of the morning shift were stabbed with hat pins in the hands of pickets. Mayor Stanley Ostrow-ski immediately assigned 25 po-

Georgia's mail for the most part, traveled by air yesterday as citizens throughout the state co-operated in testing feasibility of establishing nter-state airmail lines. Pilot Ralph G. Heavily laden with letters and packages from south Georgia, Majo Lockwood is shown above after arriving at Candler field with his cargo, on time to the minute. Several minor handicaps threatened to delay the mail, but the test pilot managed to arrive at his destination on time to prove the airmail once installed will speed Georgia's business and increase

By the thousands, interested citizens and stamp collectors sent their letters airmail throughout the state and the test flights were launched. (IUP)—A critically ill child, forcibly taken from her itinerant preacher-father in the midst of a "faith cure," was reported greatly improved here tonight in King's Daughters hospital.

She is blonde, blue-eyed Eloys Hamilton, 11, wasted by fevers and chills for a week while the Rev. N. M. Hamilton prayed at her bed-side and forbade authorities and physicians to interfere. He paid no heed to warnings that the child might die.

Record Crowds.

Town after town turned out record crowds to greet the pilots. Macon sent her postmaster, W. A. Patillo, with a special pouch of mail, to accompany the pilot.

All the pilots reported heavy turnouts at fields. Major Ralph Lockwood, who holds national operative transport license No. 3—the first two are honorary—came in with nine sacks of mail from Alma and way points and reported hundreds turning out to welcome the mail plane. John Byrd flew in from Rome with the story of crowds at each field.

Georgia in the air mail was plainly manifest in the volume of mail they have been staged. While no one has said so officially, the flight of yesterday and continuing response through the week probably will have a powerful bearing on deciding whether the Postoffice Department will give Georgia the first rural air mail service with feeder lines bringing the mails into Atlanta for clearance to the rest of the nation. rest of the nation. Crackers Open Four-Game Series With Pelicans Tonight

Al Schacht, who has been hired to put on a sort of jour de fete, as we say over at the United Lunch, for Cracker baseball fans, will do his stuff at the ball park tonight.

It is possible he may cause the sound of the wild raspberry to cease for a while and to bring joy to the saddened hearts of the baseball fans.

Al Schacht was around the baseball scene for quite a span of years. He was a fair sort of thrower, but he won his fame as a clown.

When he was through in baseball he sold a promoter on the idea of promoting Al Schacht. He has had as many engagements as he can fill this season. At a good price.

Most ball players last only as long as their legs or pitching arms. But Al Schacht stuck around long after his pitching arm was through. He was a good coach, but coaches were a sort of drug on the market. They paid Schacht money to coach and clown. "How'd you get started in this clowning business?".

"A hunch," he said. "I was coming into the ball park at Buffalo one day. It was my turn to pitch. There was an Italian fruit peddler outside the gate with his horse, a sway-backed old I gave the peddler a ticket to the game and rented his horse for $2. I'd never done any clowning. But I had this daffy idea. I went down the street to a store and bought me a pink dress.

AL SCHACHT.

"When it came time for me to go out and warm up that afternoon I came out riding the horse side-saddle fashion. I had the pink dress around my waist like a circus bareback rider. I rode right out to the mound, got down off the horse and took off my skirt, handed the bridle and skirt to an attendant and started warming up.

"My baseball suit? Oh, sure. I had it on under the skirt. Bloomers, you see. The crowd roared and the next day the papers gave it a play. So, I said to my-self, if they like clowning I'll clown."

He got to the major leagues that year by writing Clark Griffith a letter every time he, Schacht, won a game. He won 20 games, nine of them being shutouts. And after each game Griffith got a letter praising Schacht and asking why he did not give the pitcher a chance. Each letter was signed, "Just He got the chance and not until years later did he reveal the identity of "Just a Fan."

Odd enough, he wore a dress in one of his greatest ccesses-pantomime stuff of Mlle. Suzane Lenglen in her famous tour of this country. Schacht and Altrock went on between matches and put on their act. Schacht pantomimed the great French tennis star until one night she said: "Zee clowning and zee tennis she do not

Other accomplishments? Oh, yes, he can whistle through his teeth louder than any man ever connected with baseball. The ladies will be present tonight Mr. Schacht is not handsome. But he is funny.

In an atmosphere redolent of the gay nineties, followers of the sport will crowd Good Time park's sprawling grandstand and wander sprawling grandstand and wander over the big course during the week of racing, which yearly gives "buggy whip" derby fans their biggest sports thrill.

Greyhound's special race against time will share opening day honors tomorrow with the Good Time.

TRACK RECORD.

Peter Manning's mile record is 1:56 3-4 set in 1922. The big grey gelding, owned by E. J. Baker, of St. Charles, Ill., has done 1:57 1-4 for the mile and early this season broke the half-mile-track record with a time of 1:59 3-4. Many think Greyhound can break the ting fans for 15 years.
But to the shirt-sleeved followers of the circuit, the big five-year-old's effort will be merely a pleasant preliminary to the real business of the meeting, the Hambletonian. This race, named for a notable sire of trotters and pacers, ning three-year-old and has a to-tal purse of about $40,000.

AT CHATTANOOGA.

All baseball laughed when Calvin Griffith, son of Washington's "Old Fox," was appointed manager of the Lookouts following the retirement of "Raw Meat Bill" Rodgers.

Yet the youngster who grew up around the Washington ball park has taken the team and won 15 games and lost 13 since mid-July. It was one of the worst teams in the league, and yet his record is better than that of Atlanta, for instance, which team has won 13 and lost 14 and lost 14.

Griffith will be out at Chattanooga next year when the new owners take charge. Yet he is rather sure to have a job managing some Washington farm. His ambition, with a lot of avenues open to him, is to be a baseball manager. It would be quite satisfactory were he to develop into a good one.

BASEBALL SADNESS.

The hospital, to be one of the most modern structures in this section of the state, will give people of Hawkinsville and Pulaski county modern facilities for the Peanut Shelling Plant.

As a result of concerted effort on the part of business leaders and officials, the combination peanut shelling plant, warehouse and cot-ton gin, with 15,000 square feet of floor space, will be available to farmers in time to handle those crops, which are major ones in this county.

Renovation of the Old Rock warehouse, which has lain idle for years, is now under way, and when it is completed ample facilities will be provided to care not only for the peanut crop of this county but to give valuable aid to adjoining areas.

The Old Rock warehouse was built about 100 years ago, when Hawkinsville was the trading center of its entire territory and buyers came as often by the river, which flows at the edge of the city, as they did in wagon or on horse and home-made cement, the cement being cooked by the builders and the flint being taken from the bed of the Ocmulgee river.

By SIR ARTHUR WILLERT. Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and forth American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
LONDON, Aug. 9.—(By Wireess)—The British attitude toward

Japan's present campaign of pi-racy in northern China is one of anxious inactivity.

The British government, like the American government, has made appropriate remonstrances to Tokyo without the slightest success. Its communications have been re-ceived with the usual Japanese pohint privately they are out of sym-pathy with the militarists who are oushing things to extremes

Produced Nothing.

Downing Street has been in con-stant consultation with the United States State Department as what can be done to persuade Ja-pan to behave. But, beyond revealing a community indignation these consultations have produced nothing of value. They have been confined mainly to each government asking the other whether it has a plan and receiving an answer in the negative.

Russia, the other country most interested in the fate of China, has been equally impotent. It is in-deed admitted ruefully in London that, just as the Japanese timed their Manchurian coup of 1931 for the moment when England and the United States were struggling with the economic crisis, so she has this time acted at a moment opposition she had most to fear, is powerless owing to the confusion into which her army has been thrown by Stalin's execution of its Public Opinion Opposed There are two main reasons for British inactivity. One is that public opinion has made it clear, as the Japanese in London have duly reported, it is opposed to a strong far eastern policy. The fi-asco of Anthony Eden's Ethiopian sanctions and the failure of his Spanish non-intervention policy have made the British public reluctant to see the British for-eign minister interfere any more in the affairs of other countries.

The fact that Japan is in a mood where only a very definite threat of force would bring her to heel is the second most important reason for British inactivity when taken in conjunction with the present state of Europe.

Recently I attended a christening in St. Mary-in-the-Vaults (the crypt chapel in the House of Commons). In its time it has been a coal cellar, a dump for parliamentary litter and even a stable time of Oliver Cromwell.

At a speech I heard, given by Lord Derby, he mentioned Lord Snowden and Lord Kitchener. Both, he said, were supposed to have been hard men. On an evening at the Royal Opera, Covenant Garden, I saw a piece of jewelry that for grace of design was lovely enough to be in a museum. The Duchess of Kent was wearing a tiara made of a leafy pattern of diamonds, with rubies arranged like berries among the leaves.

At the King's first garden party given in Buckingham palace gardens there were 10,000 guests. It was an amazing sight, lovely Maharajahs in brilliantly colored saris bordered in silver and gold, jewels glistening in the sunlight; in contrast with smart English, chic continentals and well-dressed Americans. But I must say the multitude behaved very badly. I saw any number standing on saw any number standing on chairs so as to obtain a better view of the royal party. It is one of the few old London business houses still carrying on in their original premises. The windows have iron frames which once contained bullseye glass and I saw the old shop bell that rang at the entrance of a customer and grooves worn in the shelves behind the counter made by the snuff boxes of these long-ago days.

MY DAY

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday.—Motoring to New York, early yesterday morning, the world was pleasant to look at, even though the temperature was extremely warm. I had to stop once for gas and I chose a station where I thought I had never stopped before and, therefore, would not be recognized.

As I paid for the gas, however, the boy said to me: "You are traveling alone, Mrs. Roosevelt. Don't you usually have someone with "You drive a car as well as Franklin Jr. fishes!" I had never thought of Franklin Jr. as an able fisherman, so I wasn't quite sure whether to accept that as a compliment or not.

Once at the apartment, I changed my clothes and went to Calvary church for the wedding of my young cousin, W. Forbes Morgan, to Miss Marie Newsom, of Oklahoma. She looked sweet in her white dress and floating tulle veil. But they both seemed rather alone, as they came in and stood before

Two other young cousins and their husbands were there and a few of Forbes' and Marie's friends. Afterwards, they all came back to our little apartment and had luncheon, before the bridal couple sailed for Bermuda.

I was glad to be able to be there and to have this little party, for, while I belong to their generation, I am so much older that I always feel I belong to another generation. When you are young, it is nice to believe that somewhere in the background there are older persons to whom you can turn. They are a kind of bulwark between you and the future.

After the newlyweds had gone, my brother and I visited together and then he went off to Washington. I got back into my country clothes.

Before I left New York I had a most interesting talk with Miss Louise Yim. She is a most charming woman from Korea who for some time had had a school there for young girls. She told me that at one time free public education was making progress, but that at one time free public education was making progress, but at present 80 per cent of the people are illiterate and girls, while they may do very beautiful handwork—some specimens of which she brought me—are not able to take business or professional positions because there is no way of receiving training.

To give this training is her aim and she is over here hoping to get help from Americans interested in education, who also have an interest in the For Fact.

We have many who have been interested in schools in China and Japan, but I think few of us know much about Korea. I did not realize they have a language entirely different from either Chinese or Japanese. She told me much of their history, which was interesting and new to me. Her personality is arresting and I wish many could hear her speak about her people.

"That's sheer nonsense," replied Burdette. "In the first place you couldn't find a place on this continent more restful than a church. In the second place you haven't done enough work this year to represent one day of effort. You don't know what it means to be tired. I stopped on a Boston street the other day to watch a group of laborers. It was the noon hour. They had been at work all the morning digging a sewer excavation. FRIENDLY COUNSEL By CAROLINE CHATFIELD,

Dear Miss Chatfield: People on the outside looking in can generally tell you how to straighten out your home affairs but the advice is seldom practical for those on the inside. Take my case: I make a good living and have been generous with my wife. Somehow she manages to spend the whole day in the kitchen and when I go to bed at night I often find the bed just as I got out of it. She is untidy about her personal appearance, disorderly around the house. I used to raise the roof about her sloppy ways but now I don't expect anything else. Luckily my work takes me away from home every week and I am always glad when going time comes. If you have any practical advice to offer a miserable man he will thank you.

MISERABLE. Dear Miss Chatfield: People on

Answer: Friend, have you ever Answer: Friend, have you ever got in your car, put your foot on the starter and discovered that there was no power behind it? The perfectly good battery has gone dead and it must be taken out, recharged and put back before you can get going. Something similar to this happens to many a wife. Due to ill-health (excessive laziness and sluggishness usually have Due to ill-health (excessive lazi-ness and sluggishness usually have a physical basis), or due to disap-pointment at the way her husband treats her, or due to the unremit-ting monotony of housework, her battery goes dead and it must be re-charged.

When a woman falls down on her home-making job, 99 times out of a hundred it is because things are not right between her and her husband. This is not to say it is always the husband's fault; it isn't. But it is to say that if they can reconcile matters between them, the homemaking and the titivating will take care of themselves.

Here's the practical advice guaranteed if taken, to improve home conditions, pink the wife's cheeks, put the shine in her eyes and the spring in her step. Employ a servation and the walls were in a wall linoleum in a warm peach color. That gave a sunny glow to the room and had the added advantage of being very washable. A maple trestle table was placed at right angles to a window in just the right place for anything in a boy's life from taxidermy to arithmetic. A maple chest of drawers with a mirror over it provided for his clothes and a lift-lid chest made out of a homemade box with a hinged top was painted a bluegreen. The bed was a studio couch with blue-green end tables also homemade of boxes with shelves

Lift her out of the rut of staying at home, shake your feet and go with her to see the neighbors, take in a few movies and sports events; give her a taste of something entirely for-eign to cooking and bed making. Concievably you might invite her to go with you on a business trip occasionally.

A woman's vanity, like her love, is tenacious of life but at the same time it is very delicate. It is easily wounded and when it is sorely wounded there's no life in her. She moves around as an automaton, has no interest in anything or anybody, least of all in the home of which the husband is the axis.

Sally's Sallies

Ninetieth Birthday

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 9.—Mrs. E. L. Moore, one of Valdosta's oldest citizens, celebrated her 90th birthday here last week, the occasion being marked by a tea given by Mrs. Conversions. by Mrs. George Sherman, a grand-daughter, and Mrs. A. J. Strick-land, a sister-in-law.

Scores of friends called during the afternoon to extend congratu-lations and best wishes and Mrs. Moore was the recipient of many gifts, flowers and messages.

At some time during her 90 full years Mrs. Moore must have drunk deep of the Fountain of Youth. She is always cheerful and happy and keeps well informed on the questions of the day. While always interested in every phase of com-munity activity, Mrs. Moore's chief interest is in her church. She is devout member of the Primitive Baptist church and is prom inent in its activities and attends services regularly.

Mrs. Moore before her marriage was Miss Martha Strickland, daughter of Charles and Lucretia Strickland, and was born August 4, 1847, at Blackshear. Her girlwas spent with her parents on a large plantation near Mill-town, now Lakeland. She was married to Mr. Moore on June 27, 1867, and is the mother of three children, Mrs. T. G. Cranford, of this city, and Frank and Johnny Moore, who died years ago. She has five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The first part of Mrs. Moore's married life was spent in Homer-ville, and while she resided there the first railroad in south Georgia was built-the Altamaha & Gulf. now the Atlantic Coast Line. She moved to Valdosta 57 years ago and has continuously resided in the same house, it being one of the first built here when the county seat was moved from Troupville. The house was built by the late Dr. William Ashley, father of daughter, Mrs. Cranford; her the late D. C. Ashley, prominent Valdosta banker.

At that time there were only three other residences here. While the house has been changed on the inside, its exterior remains the same and here for more than half a century Mrs. Moore has watched Valdosta develop into a prosperous little city, and has seen individuals and families come and pass on during her long and useful life here. For the last week nearly 200 schoolbook agents have been at the capitol, awaiting their turn to appear before the board of education to argue the merits of texts they hope to sell the state under the free schoolbook program.

The weather has been warm and the agents have been providing the capitol's soft drink stand with a better than usual run of business.

Yesterday the agents got together and demanded the average 5-cent drink for 3 cents, agreed to pay only 7 cents for regular 10-cent sandwiches and otherwise demanded price reductions.

Futures were generally steady, although price changes were narrow and business was restricted by uncertainty over sugar legislation at Washington in the No. 3 contract. In No. 4 exchanging from September to later positions accounted for most of the activity.

U. S. Loans, Lately Inclined To Creep Ahead, Cut a Narrow Course.

Daily Bond Averages.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.-(A)-

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(P)—
The bond market stayed on an even keel today, as the summer buying and selling breezes continued unusually light.

Even United States Treasury loans, lately inclined to creep ahead, cut a narrow course despite reports from Washington the government soon might be able to curtail its weekly borrowings through bill offerings because of incoming cash from sales by baby incoming cash from sales by baby bonds and social security taxes. Many bond traders prolonged their vacation from active particiter clues to the underlying trends in money rates and business.

Transactions on the stock exchange totaled $5,292,400, par value, against $5,424,000 Friday. For several weeks transactions have been at the lowest ebb since recovery got well started.

Japanese loans held their ground in face of the far eastern crisis and German government 5 1-2s and 7s advanced frac-

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The combined market averages again moved sideways and it would seem that the time is rapidly nearing for the stalemate to be broken.

BEER & CO.—A continued selective advance seems in prospect at this time.

THOMSON & McKINNON—Our ideas as to the advisability of using price recessions as they occur, to and to lines in representative stocks, remains unchanged.

Among the gainers, mostly up

Among the gainers, mostly up small fractions, were Anaconda Copper 4 1-2s at 106 3-8, Bethlehem Steel 4 1-4s at 105 5-8, International Telephone 5s at 77 1-4 and National Dairy 3 3-4s at 104 1-4. Youngstown Sheet & Tube 3 1-2s jumped 2 as higher share prices diverted attention to loans tions.

The Associated Press averages showed little change in leading bond groups, except for a mod-erate rise in the 10 industrials.

COURTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The record condition figure as shown by the government report should be subject to reduction from now on and consequently we feel the market is fast approaching its seasonal bottom and therefore recommend purchases on sharp breaks.

BEER & CO.—We believe cotton will work lower.

THOMSON & McKINNON—We look for the market to drift gradually lower as the economic factors in the world cotton situation point to lower prices.

FENNER & BEANE—Indications are that the market will work lower.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Large crop estimated exceeded trade expectations, but fears of government cotton ioan partially offset bearish effect of report.

HUBBARD BROS, & CO.—Question is whether government has over-estimated crop and granted that it has not done so, it will take a very large amount of deterioration to reduce present prospects to point which would create much builish enthusiasm, particularly in view of the fact that extreme heat at this time forces early maturity and makes movement unusually heavy.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

Brokers' Views

this shortly must be reflected in future prices.

FENNER & BEANE—The action of the market is disappointing and the weight of the movement still appears too heavy to give the strong features much effect.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Typical action of wheat markets in short crop years consists of sagging tendencies in August followed by substantial advances in the fall.

5.593.000 Bales, Department Estimate, 3,194,118 More Than in 1936.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 .- (A) The Agriculture Department estinated today that this year's coton production would be 15,593,-000 bales-3,194,118 more than were grown in 1936.

Production in 1936 was 12,398,-882 bales. The 10-year-1927-1936—average production was 13,- normal on August 1 compared with 72.3 per cent a year ago and 67.7 per cent for the 10 years.

The indicated yield per acre this year was considerably in excess of both last year and the 10-year average. Current prospects were given as 223.3 pounds per acre, compared with 197.6 pounds in 1936 and 169.9 pounds for 1923-32.

"If the final outturn verifies present indications, the average of lumber and present indications, the average yield will be the highest ever recorded for the United States, the department's crop reporting board

Conditions on August 1 indicated above average yields per acre in all states and larger yields than last year in all major states, except South Carolina, Mississippi, New Mexico, Arizona and California, where yields were unusually high in 1936. The forecast was based on conditions prevailing August 1 and on the area in cultivation July 1, less the 10-year—1927-1936—average abandonment, announced as 33-429,000 acres. The crop reporting board said the final outturn will depend upon whether the various influences affecting the crop during the remainder of the season are more or less favorable than
